GRAZING

Your ground can work for you. Animals keep vegetation under control and secure supply of soil nutrition in its most natural form, bringing living countryside closer to you. Their grazing period is followed by cultivation, final cutting and harrowing to prepare land for the next season.

Topping: Shortening of grown mass on regular basis contributes to moderated, growth, increases density of mass and regulates quantitative supply to grazing animals. Topping is very popular in equine community and is a key part of routine annual maintenance.

ESTATE AGENTS-
exciting opportunity for YOU and your clients moved to the area

GROUND WORK

Sustainable performance of land shown as quality and quantity of green mass-grazed, pastured or mowed depends on input in terms of care and nutrition. Topping, rolling, harrowing or raking, ploughing, mowing- whole set of operations is available to enhance level of land performance.

CLEARANCE AND CULTIVATION

Just moved to the area?
Considering sale of the property?
Need to carry out clearance or general tidying up work or improvement of your property?

CONSERVATION

Planning, projects, consultations
Professional set up of conservation areas is vital condition for its sustainability.
Flowers, herbs, meadows- all as part of ecosystem can gradually develop on your land.

LAND CARE

Rolling: Pushes ground evenly, moderately increase soil density to improve conditions for capillare liquid movements in soil

Chain harrowing: Superficially cultivates top layer of soil, drag out old vegetation and prepare soil for next season or another operation

Power or disc harrowing: Deliver similar effect as other harrowing operations, just more radical

Rotavating: For very hard dense top soil- disintegrates cumulated aggregates, brings air into top soil layers and light up top layers in soil profile

Dung spreading: Areas used for crop or grazing should receive nutrition back, preferably in its natural form.

Fertilising: Inorganic way of soil nutrition. Products supplying N:P:K in various ratios - usual (20:10:10) or (14:14:14) encourages exhausted soil to accommodate plants needs to secure rich biomass

Spraying (selected products only- call for more info)- Inhibiting of selected species (I.e. Buttercup, Ragwort etc.) when their appearance can decrease or damage health of animals grazing on the land.

Ploughing: Turns top soil layers to increase aeration, improve soil consistency and prepare for following operations or for winter. There is not necessary need for ploughing every year

Re-seeding: Radical change of grown biomass requires re-seeding of plants, eventually dense-up already existing plant cover. Plain reseed is to be made on specifically prepared soil and is matter of weather and seasonal convenience.

WATER REGIME, TRENCH, DRAINAGE

Experience of past 24 months highlighted areas sensitive to floods and water regime disorders. Neglecting ditches and other elements of water system can decrease value of your land, enhance risk of local flood, change attributes of soil profile and consequently decrease quality of vegetation, potentially production (mud in harvested hay)

Still water enhances appearance of pathogenic elements in soil which might cause wide spectrum of health complications- mycosis, mud fever, parasites. Areas damaged by excessive water reduces their use qualitatively (impact on vegetation) and quantitatively (reduction of space and time span) when area utilized

FACT: Taken precautions not only saves money, but also saves you the consequence of flooding. Various types available dependent on environment.

Topsoil with surface vegetation

Layer gravel of to increase speed and intensity of water transport

Special drainage pipe with pores- flexible, durable, resistant, eco-friendly different sizes and materials

After the drainage system is placed, recultivation, grass seed, rolling or other processes are needed to re-establish water regime and support growth of biomass with desirable botanical characteristics (related to purpose of area)

HEDGE CUTTING

Moderated growth of hedges has massive impact on appearance of whole property?
Look around on your journey from work and think about.
Maybe your hedge would deserve cut?

Overgrown hedges are decreasing useable area of your field, aesthetical impression and also make cut after period of neglecting more risky in respect of vitality and health of hedge as a live object.

RESPECT THE LAW
Hedgecutting is not allowed
FROM MARCH TO AUGUST
